

Kelowna Terminal to open August 1, 2007

There's a real buzz happening within Western Logistics as it prepares to open a new regional service centre serving the Southern Interior of British Columbia. On August 1, Western Logistics will start direct loading into Kelowna to improve service to the resellers of furniture in the Okanagan-Thompson-Kootenay area, one of the most beautiful (and hard-to-serve!) places on the planet.

From a modern distribution centre of 7500 sq. ft. – with lots of room to expand! – Western Logistics, Kelowna, will begin regional service to areas that have been under-served for years. New air-ride equipment has been purchased, including trailer-pup “doubles” with power-gates, which will allow super-efficient linehaul as well as gentle handling into difficult delivery areas.

A planning session mid-July in Kelowna brought together terminal managers from Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver, and Kelowna (shown) and WLI Management to work out all aspects of the new service. We're all ready!!

Did you know?

Western Logistics is working with its graphic consultants, Design HQ to prepare a new web-site with many new features, tools, and information to serve our customers better.

Included will be expansion of the use of caricatures which have been so popular with customers; much easier navigation of the site; cube calculators; easy-to-use forms and documents; some interesting Google-Earth effects, and many more visuals, so you can “visit” us almost anywhere to see how we go about serving you.
