Atlantic Canada service targeted for expansion on October 1, 2007

Ten years ago, Western Logistics ventured into Atlantic Canada, tentatively, but it was only five years ago that we assigned Erick Haines, a native Haligonian (yes, folks from “away,” that’s Halifax!!), the task of re-building our service. And re-build it he did!

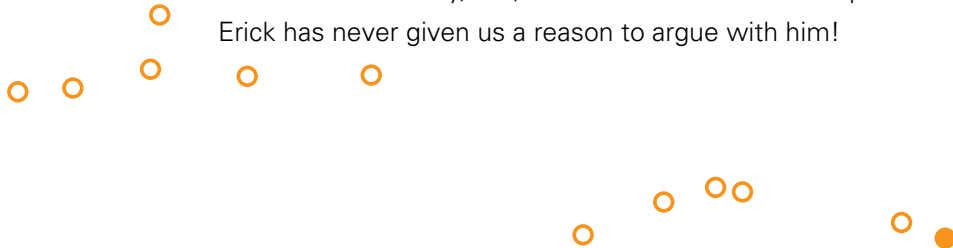

Now taxed to the limit, Erick’s getting a running mate, starting October 1. Western Logistics will create another “switch” link between Montreal-Halifax, with another skilled and seasoned “Bluenoser,” Trevor Mclsaac, thus enabling WLI to provide service to cities such as Montmagny, Rivière-du-Loup, Edmundston and Woodstock, etc., for the first time, as well as expand regional service in New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Nova Scotia.

After that? Before too long, Western Logistics will create a new full-service terminal in Halifax for regional, storage and distribution work in Atlantic Canada. “But,” adds Erick, “don’t forget that while we’re developing our base on the Mainland, I also know and love Newfoundland, and I’ve got a perfect driver lined up for that run when we’re ready to roll. Let’s show our expertise with furniture logistics over there, too. We’ve made Newfoundlanders wait too long for our service. They, too, deserve to receive their shipments in perfect shape!” Erick has never given us a reason to argue with him!

Did you know?

Western Logistics has recently upgraded its database to Filemaker 8, which gives us almost lightning speed in searching records and creating reports. This will be apparent to the growing number of customers searching our web-site for shipments en route. If you're not signed on, why wait?

Once fully de-bugged, this upgrade will allow us to add much capacity as we grow: for example, Kelowna, BC, joined the family on August 1, 2007, the first of many announcements yet to come!
